Data Sheet

- Shows where and how terms are used
- Identifies terms that are defined but not referred to
- Tracks down orphaned defined terms (used but not defined)
- Makes sure words and phrases are used correctly

Indexes any Word document

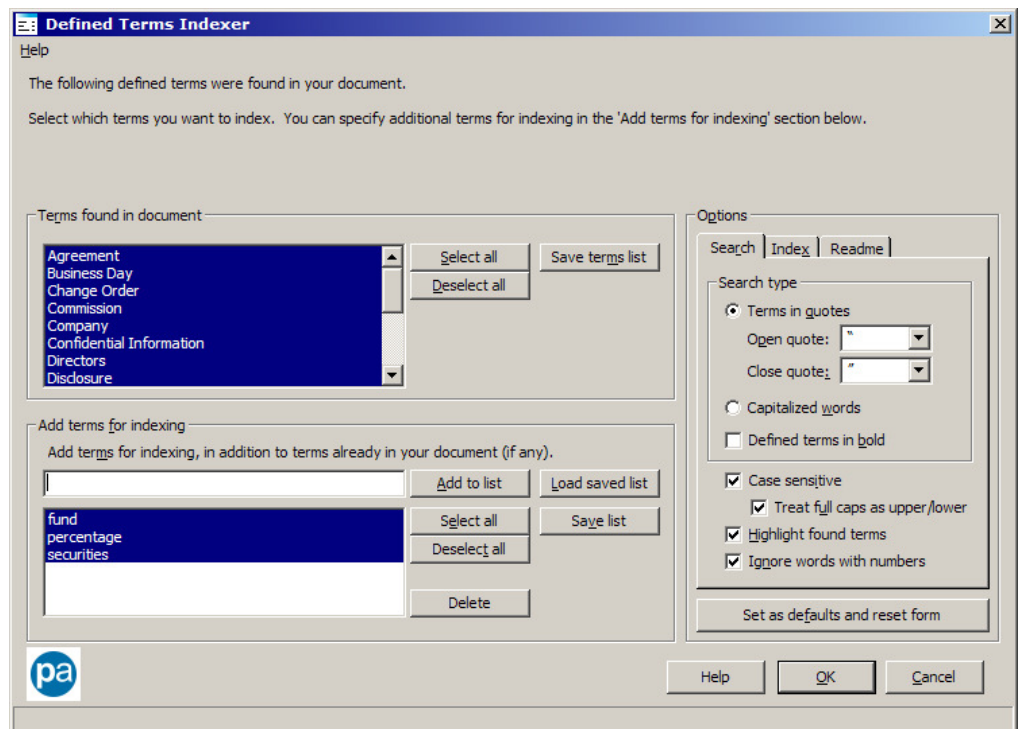

Defined Terms Indexer is a Word add-in that indexes and highlights defined terms as well as user-specified words and phrases in Word documents. It works with every kind of document – contracts, agreements, pleadings, prospectuses, leases, insurance policies, any document for any profession.

Defined Terms Indexer automatically finds, highlights and indexes any number of words and phrases in any Word document, whenever you want. You can quickly and easily track any or all of your terms to make sure they're used and capitalized correctly with a few clicks of a mouse. Defined Terms Indexer accelerates proofreading complex word processing documents, allowing you to concentrate on content.

You can choose whether you want Defined Terms Indexer to automatically list all defined terms – words and phrases in double quotes – or find and list all capitalized words and phrases. You can also provide your own search lists instead of in addition to what Defined Terms Indexer finds for you.

Easy to use

The clear, easy to understand interface makes it simple for everyone in your organization to create their own defined terms indexes: professionals as well as support staff.

The index can be updated anytime. Defined terms index entries and indexes can easily be removed with the click of a button.

Use with any open document

Because Defined Terms Indexer is an Word add-in, it can be integrated with existing menus and button bars. While a document is open, you just point and click to create a new defined terms index or update an old one.
